

What should my doctor know?

Most providers understand the importance of MAT. Make sure your prenatal care provider knows about your MAT dose. You may need to sign a release that allows your prenatal care provider to talk to your MAT prescriber. This is very important for when you are ready to deliver and you need to get the correct dose while you're in the hospital. It's also important so that your doctor can plan for your pain management during and after labor and delivery.
